MSP PURCHASES OF OILSEEDS, PULSES SLUGGISH

Mandi prices rule above MSP

SANDIP DAS
New Delhi, April 11

AS THE ARRIVALS of rabi crop peak, the mandi prices of mustard and chana are firmly ruling around minimum support price (MSP) leading to sluggish procurement by government agencies. Trade sources told FE that the market prices of mustard at Bharatpur, Rajasthan, the hub of the wholesale trade in oilseed variety was quoted at ₹5,974/quintal against the MSP of ₹5,950/quintal for 2024-25 rabi season. Average mandi prices of oilseed in major producing states is currently ruling at ₹5,828/quintal as against ₹5,188/quintal prevailed a year ago.

"The mustard prices may rule around ₹6,000/quintal this season on account of robust demand which would discourage farmers to sell their produce at MSP to the government agencies," Rong Singh, CEO, Uttan Mustard Producers, a farmer producer organisation based in Bharatpur, Rajasthan, told FE. Singh said the farmers would hold onto their commodities for next few months for better price realisation as in the last two years because of cheaper imports, market prices of mustard were ruling 10% to 15% below the MSP. Similarly in case of chana, which has a share of 50% in India's pulses output, average market prices are ruling at ₹5,700/quintal against the MSP of ₹5,650/quintal despite a robust rabi crop prospects. Under the price support scheme (PSS) of the agriculture ministry, the government agencies - Nafed and NCCF have purchased only 0.31 million tonne

(MT) and only 1.6, 670 tonne of mustard and chana so far against the sanctioned volume of 2.82 MT and 2.79 MT respectively for 2024-25 season for the key producing states including Haryana, Madhya Pradesh (MP), Rajasthan, Uttar Pradesh (UP), Gujarat and Assam Formastard, while trade had projected a production of 11.52 MT in 2024-25 season, the agriculture ministry has estimated the output of oilseed variety at ₹12.87 MT. In 2023-24 season, government agencies had purchased 1.2 MT of mustard from the farmers in Haryana, MP, Rajasthan and Uttar Pradesh. "While chana prices are ruling above MSP, mustard is close to the remunerative prices announced by the government which is why procurement has been poor this season," said an official.

Rana discloses testimony with FBI, Pakistan links

DEEPTIMAN TIWARY
New Delhi, April 11

THE NATIONAL INVESTIGATION Agency (NIA), which has been granted 18-day custody of Tahawwur Rana, the 26/11 Mumbai terror attack conspirator extradited to India from the US, is to be confronted with disclosures about his role by Lashkar-e-Taiba scout David Coleman Headley.

Rana is being questioned by investigators of the NIA and officials of the Intelligence Bureau at the NIA headquarters.

Sources in the NIA on Friday said that Rana, who was brought to Delhi Thursday evening and produced before a court for grant of custody, will also be confronted with his own testimony given to the Federal Bureau Investigation (FBI) and the Northern District Court in Illinois. "He will be put through a fresh interrogation on those facts. The NIA had been granted access to Headley, but not Rana. So, the agency is questioning him for the first time. The attempt is to see if he can reveal more India-specific information or details that he may not have revealed to the FBI," a senior security establishment official said.

He stands accused of planning and providing logistical support for the 26/11 attacks by opening a branch of his Chicago-based immigration business in Mumbai to provide Headley with a cover for reconnaissance ahead of the attack in November 2008.

Arrested by US authorities in Chicago in 2009, Rana was subjected to detailed questioning by the FBI. The Northern District Court in Illinois prosecuted him for providing material support to terrorism in India; conspiracy to provide material support to terrorism in Denmark; and providing material support to Lashkar-e-Taiba. He was later acquitted of the first charge.

"It is now the NIA's job to prepare the case with such evidence that he is convicted. We have our own perspective of the 26/11 attacks and the large conspiracy of the LeT to attack India. We hope more information can be gleaned from him," another official said.

Sources said a matter of special interest to the agency is Rana's travels in India ahead of the Mumbai attack. From Headley's testimony in the US and FBI case papers, it emerged that days before the attack, Rana visited India between November 13 and November 21, 2008. During his stay in India, Rana and his wife visited several places including Hapur, Delhi, Agra, Kochi, Ahmedabad and Mumbai.

"He told US authorities that he had made the visit for terror recruitment. We need to verify this fact. We also need to find out what other places he visited and what he did there. If he was here for recruitment, who all did he get in touch with of interest to us," an NIA official said. The agency is also looking at what kind of financial support Rana provided to Headley or to other activities of the LeT in India.

"We have to also find out if there were other terror attacks planned. With the assistance of Rana and on the instructions of his handlers in Pakistan, Headley had made a reconnaissance of multiple locations of importance in India including the National Defence College, Bhabha Atomic Research Centre, Chabot House, and Hindu places of worship among others," the official said.

A Pakistani-Canadian who once served in the Pakistan Army Medical Corps, Rana will also be questioned on his contacts in the Pakistan ISI and the role of its officers in orchestrating the 26/11 attack. He had been in touch with plotters Major Iqbal, Major Sameer Ali, LeT operatives Abdur Rehman and Sajid Mir.

Karnataka accepts report on caste survey

AKRAM M
Bengaluru, April 11

MORE THAN A year after it was submitted to Chief Minister Siddaramaiah in February 2024, the Karnataka Cabinet Friday accepted the Socio-Economic and Educational Survey report, popularly referred to as the caste survey.

The 50-volume report, submitted by the Karnataka State Commission for Backward Classes in February 2024, is scheduled to be discussed at a Special Cabinet meeting on April 17.

Briefing the media on the report, Backward Classes Welfare Minister Shivraj Tangadagi said the survey assessed 54 parameters on the social and educational status of Karnataka households. "Of the 6.35 crore population in the state, 5.98 crore people from 1.35 crore families were surveyed," he said, making it 94.17% of the entire population. Around 37 lakh families, or 5.83% of the total population, were not surveyed.

The survey was incidentally commissioned during Siddaramaiah's first tenure as CM, from 2013 to 2018. The backward classes commission, under its former chairman H Kantharaj, had conducted the door-to-door survey from April 11 to May 30, 2015.

The two sealed boxes containing the report were opened during the Cabinet meeting on Friday.

A volume on the survey and its key findings, a volume on characteristics of castes except Scheduled Castes (SC) and Scheduled Tribes (ST), two volumes on characteristics of SC and ST communities, volumes on Assembly seat-wise, district-wise and taluka-wise data were among the 50 volumes placed before the Cabinet. "Some findings of the volumes were discussed, following which a Special Cabinet meeting was convened for April 17 to deliberate on all the details of the survey," Tangadagi said.

According to Tangadagi, a total of 1.6 lakh officials and other staff were deployed for the state-wide survey. The data compiled by government officials was digitised at district centres by the government-run Bharat Electronics Limited (BEL) at a cost of Rs 43.09 crore. For the survey, Rs 7 crore was received from the Centre, while the state set aside Rs 185.79 crore. The total cost of the survey was Rs 165.51 crore, the minister said, adding that the data was validated by the Indian Institute of Management-Bangalore.

Law and Parliamentary Affairs minister H K Patil said the report did not find any opposition when it was submitted to the state Cabinet.

With common agenda, BJP &amp; AIADMK form alliance in TN

ARUN JANARDHANAN
Chennai, April 11

UNION HOME MINISTER Amit Shah formally announced an alliance between the BJP and AIADMK for the 2026 Tamil Nadu Assembly elections here Friday, adding that AIADMK general secretary Edappadi K Palaniswami will lead it. He also said that the two parties will have a common minimum programme.

The alliance between the AIADMK and BJP in Tamil Nadu is under the leadership of EPS. We will have a common minimum programme before we get into the elections. We will all work together to make the alliance stronger," Shah said, sharing the stage with Edappadi K Palaniswami and BJP state president Kannamalai whose exit from the post is being widely seen as a strategic reshuffle to cement ties between the two parties.

Asked specifically about expelled AIADMK leaders O Panneerselvam and TTV Dhinakaran, with whom the BJP had an understanding in last year's Lok Sabha polls, Shah said, "The BJP will not interfere in the AIADMK's internal matters or ask them to reinduct ousted leaders. There will not be any interference." Incidentally, such interference was seen as one reason AIADMK voters turned away from the party in the 2021 Assembly elections, which it fought in its previous alliance with the BJP.

The splits within the AIADMK were also seen by many as engineered by the BJP to weaken its southern partner. Shah making it clear that EPS would lead the alliance would help settle such fears. Shah's declaration that there would be a common minimum programme was also an assurance that the BJP would accommodate its ally, given their different stands on several issues sensitive for Tamil Nadu. During the press conference, Shah dismissed concerns raised by the DMK-led alliance over some of them, such as the NEET medical entrance exam and impending delimitation. "There is nothing to be worried about. The DMK will engage in issues to mislead people, but we will continue to take up people's issues," the Union Home Minister said.

Addressing questions on the perceived delay in formalising the alliance with the AIADMK, Shah said firmly, "There was no delay... It was only to build a comprehensive and strong alliance."

On one of the most anticipated questions during the press meeting about how much of a factor Annamalai was in the delay, and if his exit as state chief had anything to do with the alliance, Shah responded with a grin: "Nothing like that. Annamalai is the state president even today, that's why he is sitting beside me. There is no truth to your question."

As reported by The Indian Express, the fact that Annamalai and EPS share the same Gounder caste, however, was the biggest factor in the BJP considering a change of leadership in the state.

Saturday's joint appearance of EPS, Annamalai and Shah was another iteration by the BJP that it wasn't under any pressure on the issue of its state chief. In his tweet before the media interaction, Shah posted: "Annamalai's contribution has been unprecedented... The BJP will leverage Annamalai's organizational skills in the party's national framework."
